The stories of people

The story of Nadia

Nadia is 32 years old from Essaouira city. She is the youngest daughter among her sisters. Nadia's mother passed away when she was 3 years. Her father remarried and then Nadia got care by the wife of her father. By time, Nadia used to go to her aunt 'house to spend the holiday with her cousins. One day, her cousin used the chance of being alone in their house and lured her to his chamber and raped her. Nadia became bedridden because she was only 13 years at the time. The family tried to get rid of Nadia to avoid the neighbors' sayings. Fortunately, all their tries were in vain because she told her father and her scream ran to the neighborhood. Nadia's morality was destroyed and strained. She even tried to revenge but she couldn't. Nadia went to Agadir and let everything behind, but the coming fate was not much different from her past. She met a woman in the bus who took her home pretending that she would help her but she used her in house works and sent her to prostitution to get money. She stayed like that until she became pregnant and when she told the woman she threw her into street to meet a man who felt sympathy towards her and suggested for her to be a dancer in a group of Berber singers. She worked with them until she gave birth to her daughter Hajar. After many weeks, someone knocked Nadia's heart and promised to marry her. Eventually, he married her and after four years of marriage they broke up because he kept insulting her with her past. Nadia went back to the group of singers but she went also to prostitution that ended up to a single daughter called Ibtissam. Now, Nadia reached our association with a heavy melancholy begging for help to register her daughters and to support her materially and morally.

The story of Zainiba

After Zainiba was sent to Oum El Banine she gave birth to a female child but her morality still very difficult. The fact of being raped affected her fact badly to the extent of screaming at nights, she no longer know herself and escape from people. We took her to a psychological doctor who told us that the she is suffering from a nervous breakdown. We couldn't keep the child any longer with her so we keep her daughter with a babysitter and we paid all the needs waiting for the mother to get recovered. Now, twenty days and she still exhausted and she still has to take medications to get back to her natural life.

The story of Hanan

Hanan is a daughter of a single mother. She is 15 years old from the surroundings of Agadir. Her mother is doing her best to let her continue her studies especially that Hanan is excellent in studies. The circumstances are difficult and the needs are bigger. The president used to help her time to time and this time she gave her a laptop to help her with her studies. Hanna was very happy with the laptop which she never thought she would have.
